Autonomy and Connectedness: Supporting Your Toddler’s Developing Independence

Join us for dinner and a talk presented by Dr. Amy Williamson!

Topics we will discuss:
1) Discuss what is behind the budding independence of toddlers
2) Learn practical strategies that can be used to support your child’s independence while keeping them safe
3) Learn what is worrisome and what is “normal” behavior for toddlers and why (hint: tantrums are normal!)

Dr. Amy Williamson is an associate professor in the department of Human Development and Family Science at Oklahoma State University. She is also the Ramona Ware Emmons Paul Professor in Early Childhood and the director of the Institute for Building Early Relationships in HDFS at OSU. Dr. Williamson earned her doctorate in Human Development and Family Studies at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro. She specializes in infant and toddler development and education and her research focuses on the development of caregiver-child relationships in the context of family and early education settings as well as teacher professional development and well-being.

Event Details

Thursday February 15th, 2018
5:30-7:30pm

Dinner served from 5:30-6:00*
Childcare available!*

*Dinner and childcare are provided free of charge, but ticket reservations are required

Located at OSU Tulsa
700 N Greenwood Ave
Tulsa, OK 74106
North Hall- B.S. Roberts room

To register for the event please go to the link below:
https://okupevent.

For details about class topics and to register for our events please visit our website:
https://www.osu-tulsa.okstate.edu/okup

Like our page on Facebook for event updates and other parenting information! @OSUOKUP